REVISION ADVICE

1. Know what you will be tested on

Before you dive in:

- Get the specification for each subject (from the exam board website).
- Know exactly what topics will be examined.
- Understand the question formats (multiple choice, long answer, etc.).
- Read this booklet and follow the subject specific tips

2. Create a realistic revision timetable

Don't overpack it — quality over quantity.

- Use short sessions: 25–30 minutes (Pomodoro technique), followed by 5-minute breaks.
- Include all subjects, but prioritize weak areas.
- Be flexible: If you miss a session, move it—don't stress.
- Build in rewards and rest days.

3. Active recall & spaced repetition

These two are proven to work better than just re-reading notes.

Active recall:

- Use flashcards (apps like Anki or Quizlet, or physical ones).
- Cover your notes, then try to write or say everything you remember.
- Teach someone else the topic.

Spaced repetition:

- Revise topics multiple times over weeks.
- Schedule reviews of each topic just before you're likely to forget it.

4. Past papers = practice like it's the real thing

- Start early with past papers (available from exam board websites).
- Time yourself under exam conditions.
- Mark your answers using the official mark schemes.
- Use examiner reports to understand common mistakes.

5. Use the “blurting” method or draw a mind map

Great for self-assessment:

1. Pick a topic.
2. Write down everything you know on a blank sheet.
3. Check against notes.
4. Fill in what you missed in a different colour.

REVISION ADVICE

6. Mix it up (Interleaving)

- Don't study the same subject or topic for hours.
- Mix different topics (e.g., revise science equations, then English quotes).
- It keeps your brain engaged and improves memory retention.

7. Don't neglect wellbeing

- Get enough sleep (at least 7–8 hours).
- Stay hydrated, eat healthy food.
- Avoid consuming too many caffeinated drinks.
- Take regular screen breaks
- Take part in exercise or other hobbies you enjoy.

8. Use revision resources wisely

• Online platforms like:

- Seneca Learning
- BBC Bitesize
- Physics & Maths Tutor
- Save My Exams
- Sparx

• YouTube channels (e.g., Mr Bruff for English, Cognito for Science)

9. Revise with friends

- Revision groups can be powerful, if focused.
- Teach each other topics.
- Quiz each other using flashcards or mini-tests.

10. Prepare fully just before each exam

- Get an early night and set an alarm with plenty of time to get to school
- Pack your bag with a clear water bottle, a snack and black pens
- Know your seat number and candidate number
- Go to the toilet before the exam
- Put your phone and watch in your bag and leave it in the faith room
- Remove all metal and revision notes from your pockets
- Line up quietly and early for the exam
